every match in the house was destroyed and only safety fuses are now being used.

The Fire Department made a rigid examination, but they also were baffled.

Justice Hogan carries no insurance upon his household effects. No stranger has been seen to enter the house since the first fire started, and at the Justice's house it was said that it was possible, but not probable, that the children might have caused the fires.

Charlie, the Justice's three-year-old son, burnt his fingers while playing with matches about a year ago, and he is now mortally afraid of fire. Jack, five years old, is frightened when he sees a match burning, so the family do not think it possible that either of the boys caused the fires.

Fire Marshal Mitchell said this morning that he has personally investigated the cause of the fire in Justice Hogan's residence. At first he believed the fires were started by one of the servants, but since their discharge he has come to the conclusion that it is one of the members of the Justice's family.
